

Software Business, April 13, 2009

Delivering SaaS: Executing on a Service-Based Business Model

Anna Maria Anthony

Many software vendors are already developing Software as a Service (SaaS) offerings. However, the effective execution of subscription-based technology takes more than a simple product redesign. Software providers must tackle the challenge with changes to all of the fundamental aspects of their business: strategy, people, process and technology. Such a decision is not without risk, and requires thoughtful planning and execution.

Read the full article at Software Business.